(e) Yes, Sir.

(f) The Bharat Nirman initiated by the Government during the year 2005-06 has set a more realistic goal of providing road connectivity to all habitations having population 1000 and above (500 in case of hilly or tribal areas) by the year 2009. This requires an investment of Rs. 48,000 crore. In addition to making arrangements for providing the required funds to the States, the Government has also taken initiatives to augment the capacity of the States to implement the programme within the given time-frame.
